IN A RAIN OF IRON MANY MET DEATH

SEVEN MENINSTANTLY KILLED IN TEXAS.

Fatal Boiler Explosion In a Lumber Mill at Dodcette-Building at San Francisco Collapses-Five Bodies Taken From the Ruins-Fire Adds Horror to the Accident.

Woodville, Texas, June 23.—At Douchette, thre miles north of Woodville, at 7 o'clock Monday morning, the tram engine boiler of the Nebraska Lumber company, exploded, kiling seven men outright and seriously, if not fatally, injuring three others. Six of the victims had their heads entirely torn from their bodies, and were otherwise mutilated beyond recognition. The dead

ANOTHER UNKNOWN MAN. The wounded are:

Dan A. Hartman, fireman; arms terribly lacerated and painfully scalded about face and neck.

D. O. Sullivan, section hand; badly scalded.

- Dowling, scalded about the face

Reports as to how the explosion happened are somewhat conflicting. One report is that the engine had just left Duchette, and had jumped the track. The men crowded around to get the engine back, when the explosion occurred. The engine was what is known as a Shay, with the machinery on one side, and the drivers propelled by cog wheels. Just what caused the explosion will probably never be known. The water which supplied the engine had been low, and muddy, and the sediment is said to have caked in the bottom of the boiler until it became dan- tial bee buzzing in his bonnet. An eye witness says he heard the noise, report, a rain-like patter of iron, and it buried near the scene of their death. and the remains of Mr. Douchette were brought here and forwarded to Orange.

The building came down with an awful crash, and the structure was in a moment a mass of kindling wood. There were a large number of people in the building at the time. Two laborers, Michael Hyward and James Daley, at work on the building, state that the accident was caused by the fact that the jackscrws supporting the building were much higher on the north side than on the south side. In the front the ruins, plainly visible, lay a man. Across his body was a large beam. He cried piteously for help. After working half an hour, the rescuers released him, and he was taken to the receiving hospital. The mass of debris caught fire at the rear end and a volume of smoke blinded the rescuers. The engines commenced threatened the lives of those under the debris.

Georgetown, British Guiana, June 23. -Mr. Harrison, the official who was in charge of the laborers who were opening a road from the Barima to the Cuvuni river within the Schomburgk line, when they were stopped by a force of armed Venezuelans on June 15, has been arrested by the Venezuelans under fresh orders from Caracas and carried to the Venezuelan station opposite Uruan, the Venezuelans claiming the right to arrest foreigners on the left bank of the Cuyuni.

The arrest of Mr. Harrison has aroused the colony of British Guiana and the population demands that Great Britain take immediate and decisive action in the case.

Washington, June 23.-No official adcircles of the arrest of Mr. Harrison, as reported in the above dispatch. Surprise is not expressed at the conflict of authority, as the opinion is that such difficulties may be expected so long as the boundary question remains unsettled. The affair is similar in many respects to the Uruan incident of a year ago.

BIG PICNIC AT CLEAR LAKE

The Grangers Will Gather at That Resort Tomorrow

Olear Lake, June 23-The largest picnic of the season will be held here Wednesday, June 24. The grangers will hold a big gathering and everybody is invited. Bring your lunch baskets and stay all day. There will be singing and speaking and a jolly good time. Haying is the order of the day now and harvest will very early this year. A. L. Rose and George Suten were fishing at Koshkonong Thursday. There was quite a heavy rain storm Saturday about 5 o'cleck. Some wind and a little hail mixed and did some damage to oats and blew down a few trees. Little Glen Stockman entertained twelve of his friends Saturday, June 20, in honor of his sixth birthday. The little folks played games, sang and spoke and at 5 o'clock ice cream and cake were served and the little ones went home feeling happy. Each one brought a little token of friendship. Mrs. L. Gilbertson spent a portion of the week visiting her daughter. Dr. Shepard of Edgerton Lake on ascount of the rain.

DOWN THE FLUME.

The snow lay deep in the Cour d'Alenes-yes, more than that, the mining camps were "snowed in." I had not been long in the camp, and it was all new to me, so I naturally tied to Governor Bill, foreman of the Last Chance, during the exciting days of the great snowstorm. The miners gave him that name because he had gone to college with a governor of one of our eastern states. He was educated for the bar, but drink made him a miner, and now that he was reformed the company made him a foreman. When the storm commenced, the mills were all shut down and the water which furnished the power was turned from the various flumes.

The day following the one of the heaviest snowfall it was reported at the lower end of the gulch that an immense snowslide had occurred during the night at the upper end. I procured a pair of snowshoes and hurried to the scene. The manager and Bill were superintending the working of scores of miners-in fact, all the available men.

"What's the matter, Bill?" I inquired. "The men at the upper mill are buried in this mountain of snow," he answered. "What! How many?"

"Four. You see, the miners at the boarding house there below escaped, but those who slept in the loft of the mill told the men below that he felt very at the head of the gulch had no chance to leave."

Those who have visited the Cœur d'Alenes will recall how steep the buttes rise from the narrow gulches. At places you can scarcely scale them, and even the hardy pines can barely gain a foot-

The wind was now blowing in gusts, carrying clouds of snow from the buttes above, swirling down the slopes, eddying through the gulches and banking the white powder at the very feet of the miners. Shovels were powerless, but the men worked on in the firm belief that they would reach their comrades. But no one knew whether the old building had stood the strain and that the poor fellows were alive.

"It's no go, Mr. Bardon," Bill despondently said. "There is no telling how long the storm will keep up, and even if it soon subsides it will be days before we can reach them. Moreover, they cannot live long in that small building without air."

"I fear you are right, Bill. But it is all we can do, "slowly replied the man-

There was a momentary lull in the storm, when the governor remarked, with an anxious face: "Look at the streak down the butte. That must have been the path of the slide.' "Yes, it originated on the smooth flume." A blinding rush of snow from over the mountains shut out the view. "The wind keeps the flume bare near the top of the slope," added the manager after we had shifted our positions, for the snow was drifting about us.

All day long the men toiled, and all that night reliefs were working, but progress in the shaft was slow, as the snow continually caved in or was carried in by the wind. During the following day and night there was no let up in the work. To me affairs looked more hopeful, for the storm had spent its fury and was now subsiding. That night I asked Bill how deep he thought the snow was where the men were work-

'It's a hundred feet if an inch," he replied, "and we have not made more than 40. Thirty more feet should bring us to the roof, but, you see, it becomes harder the deeper we get."

Evidently Bill did not take as hopeful a view of affairs. I had moved my bunk to the office building, and early the following morning I was aroused by a loud knocking at the door. It was the governor. He looked very determined and hurriedly said that he had planned a scheme, a side issue, during the night and wanted me to join him. Bill had not slept or eaten much since the slide, so worried had he been and anxious to rescue the buried men. He had several hundred feet of small, strong rope with him, and after a hurried breakfast at the officers' mess five of us set out on snowshoes. "Which way, Bill?"

"To the flume," was all he said. I did not urge him; it only irritates a strong man to ask him to disclose his plans in time of action. I decided to follow and await developments.

The ascent of the precipitous butte in the gray of morning was no easy task, but by taking a somewhat circuitous route, which followed a "hogback," we avoided the steeper slope and before long reached the exposed portion of the wooden flume.

"And now," said Bill, "we'll move down as far as we can along the flume." We did so, and after traveling a short distance below the point where the snow first covered the planking we dug several feet and cleared the boards.

The scheme had gradually unfolded itself to me. I saw it all now. Bill was going to have himself lowered down the flume and, if possible, through the 24 inch metallic conduit, which prolonged the flume at a short distance from the getting through the turbine and into the building. And this was the man who, during the tumultuous troubles of a precednig summer, had stood loyal to the company, and with a few brave men had kept these same miners at the lower end of the gulch away from the company's works. Here he was now straining mind and body to rescue them.

An ax opened the passageway and revealed a dark space of about 2 feet by 4 feet in dimensions. Bill fastened the rope under his arms and lashed his revolver to the inner side of his right leg. "It will be a close fit in the conduit," said he, "but I will need the pistol to alarm the men, should I get to the mill. When the rope is pulled, haul away, and I hope each time you will have a heavy load." We lowered away, and he disappeared. I felt peculiarly uneasy at seeing the generous fellow leave, though the scheme seemed so feasible that I could not see any danger involved. "If the flume is broken, we will haul him back," I reasoned. I knew he could not use his arms to signal while in the conduit, and I decided to haul away if none came within a reasonable time. The men at work below had suspended operations and stood gazing up at us in wonder-overlooking the gulch I had noticed a Account National Educational Associdecided change in the weather. A "chinook" was blowing-those southwesterly winds which temper the climate of the west, changing within a few hours winter into spring, snow into water. Instead of the blinding snow of the day before, a drizzling rain at first set in, and within an hour had greatly increased in quantity. Surely those soft, gentle winds that bring life to freezing men and beasts as far east as the Bad Lands never bring destruction in their

"This will pack and settle the snow," remarked one of the miners.

We did not then know what effect that would have on the flume. This sluice, which furnished water power for the mill, did not descend in a direct line, but took a diagonal course across

Bill reached the turbine safely, but had no room to spare the conduit. He peculiar while making this part of the descent, fearful that by some chance he might be fastened there.

On reaching the turbine he fired a shot, but no reply of any kind was made. Then he fired two in succession, and soon the joyful answer, in the shape of hammering on the metallic pipe, greeted his ears. The men, poor fellows, thought the first shot was a breaking timber and listened to it grimly. They had braced the building as their fate. When the two reports sounded, they felt sure it was a signal, and for return passage until July 15, in-Emma Joe (he last worked at the Em- clusive, with the privilege of an addima mine) said: "Rouse up, boys. Here

At first, they afterward told me, it | Washington. had not occurred to them that any one came down through the conduit. They thought a shaft had been sunk and that the first object encountered was the conduit. They ran to it and hammered-a dull reply, and there was no mistake as whence it came. Bill could only kick with his boot.

Weak and exhausted they worked with desperate eagerness, and after some time removed the turbine. Down dropped Bill among them.

"Thank God, it's Governor Bill!" said Emma Joe. And then these rough, reckless men sobbed with joy.

"What's that, Bill?" Joe inquired. "It's the snow settling. There is chinook' above. Come, hurry, you fellows, and we will leave this place." The first man to go attached the rope, pulled at it and was hauled upward. And the snow continued to settle.

Then two more were rescued and the

"Go ahead, Bill."

"No, you, Joe. Hurry!" "Why, old man, so anxious?"

"Just because the fellows above want to see you, Joe," he almost pleaded. Joe afterward said that Bill looked pale at this time and assumed indifference. "The heavy snow might crush the flume, Bill." "It won't crush it."

smiled like a woman. Joe barely passed the point where the wooden flume was united to the conduit. the angle between them was becoming sharper and sharper, but he bent his body and thus passed through. Then with a horrible feeling he thought of Bill. "And this is why he hurried us," he groaned.

This was the reason. Bill noticed the break when he descended, and he knew what the creaking sounds from the conduit meant, but he never told the others. When Joe reached the surface he barely whispered, "Hurry and lower the rope!" Too late!

The weight at the rope's end lodged

Joe knew where. And then the miners dug with frenzy, for Bill was the pride of the camp. When the shaft, sunk through the snow, reached the mill, it was crushed. The strain upon it due to the watered snow had been too great. Governor Bill's body When the shaft, sunk through the snow, was found revolver in hand, and this told a story. Two days later there was as impressive a funeral at the Last Chance camp as was ever seen on the earth, but deep in the fragmentary rock of a played out stope of the mine. They will tell you now among the Cœur d'Alene mountains of the governor hero of the Cœur d'Haleine, "heart of breath."-Lieutenant Herman Hall in Collier's Weekly.

Paul Railway. SHAKERS AND DOCTORS TALK TOGETHER.

In his able work entitled 'Longevity' published a few years ago, Dr. John Gardner, of England, predicts that a vegetable agent will yet be found that shall so retard those changes that bring about old age as to prolong human life much beyond its present limit.

Acting, perhaps, upon the impulse produced by this thought, many eminent physicians have called from time to time upon the Shakers of Mt. Leban-on to inquire of them [concerning the

The Shakers willingly told what they had learned, and in return received from their visitors much valuable information about disease; which they at Chance camp as was ever seen on the frontier. They buried him, not in wormy important point was that if a genuine and certain remedy could be found for indigestion and dyspepsia, and the ailments growing out of it, a long step would be taken in the right direction Old age, said the physicians, begins in a failure of the digestion, and so do most diseases at any and all periods of life. The result of these consultations MADE MEAMAN LIBBY. CUT. GLASS was the discovery by the Shakers, of the desired specific, made wholly from the desired specific, made wholly from herbs, and now known as the Shaker Digestive Cordial. Its action is magical and worthy of its origin.

Where there is distress after eating, heart burn, sick headache, bad taste in the moath, biliousness, weakness, and weariness, cold hands ard feet, aversion to food, nervousness, or any other symptom of dyspepsia, the Cordial will prove its curative virtues. ### NOTHING BUT SILVER.

Ohio Democracy Is Holding Its State

Convention Today. Columbus, June 23.-Delegates to the democratic state convention, which is to be held here today and Wednesday, are here in force, and the indications are that the affair will be purely perfunctory. Silver men control without an effort. So easily has silver won in the district elections that the gold men will hardly be able to register even a feeble protest. The advocates of 16 to 1 claim to have elected 526 delegates. They concede but seventy-two delegates to the sound money men and put sixty-five in the non-committal column. The delegates-at-large will probably be John R. McLean of the District of Columbia; Bookwalter of the world at large, and 270; Oats, 190. Hogs, 28,000. L. E. Holden of Colorado; John W. American Bimetallic league. Calvin S. Brice of New York will be ignored, and his friends say that he will not attend the convention.

Has a Cure for Leprosy.

Fort Scott, Kan., June 22.-Mayor C. M. Bowie, of White Castle, La., has i written to Dr. Dolphin of this city, who claims to have effected a cure of leprosy, asking him to demonstrate his cure at the leprosy hospital six miles from White Castle, and the doctor will leave Tuesday for that place. There are twenty patients slowly dying of this disease in the hospital, Mayor Bowie says, and the doctor has assured him that he can cure them.
